When we early A.A.'s got our first glimmer of how spiritually prideful we could be, we coined this expression: "Don't try to be a saint by Thursday!" That oldtime admonition may look like another of those handy alibis that can excuse us from trying our best. Yet a closer visit reveals just the contrary. This is our A.A. way of warning against pride-blindness, and the imaginary perfections that we do not possess (As Bill Sees It, p. 181).
